The COA reads in part: THIS IS TO CERTIFY that the following item was the personal property of ELVIS PRESLEY.
The Elvis Presley Museum opened on June 1, 1978 and is the only museum in the world licensed by Elvis Presley Enterprises, Inc. and "Graceland" - the estate of Elvis Presley.
Personally owned and well worn brown leather suede pants that Elvis purchased in the 70's during one of his shopping sprees in Las Vegas, Nevada at a high end boutique, called Suzy Creamcheese. The boutique was known for selling unique, one-of-a-kind fashions to celebrities and the affluent. These pants have the original label intact which reads: 'Suzy Cream Cheese Loves You! Sunnyvale Las Vegas.' The front has a zipper closure, two metal snaps on the waistband and one loose belt loop. The waist measures approx. 34ins and the inseam approx. 31½ins.

"This item belonged to Vernon Presley and was obtained from Holbart and Bonnie Burnette. During the early 1960s Vernon purchased a home 1266 Dolan Dr, which is adjacent to Graceland along the southeaston wall. Elvis had a gate installed so that he could walk from his backyard directly into his father's house. After Elvis's divorce in 1973, Elvis spent more time over there to occasionally escape Graceland and its inhabitants. Elvis would sometimes stay over late into the night talking with his father about the old days, his philosophies about life and family. After Elvis's death, Vernon moved into Graceland and sold the Dolan home and all its contents to Holbart and Bonnie Burnette who owned the Hickory Log Restaurant across the street from Graceland. The Burnette's delivered food up to the house for the Memphis Mafia and on occasion Elvis or Vernon. This item was purchased from the Burnette's and was on display at the Elvis-A-Rama Museum for many years "
