Rugby Memorabilia - Important British Lions Collection

This Collection is one of the finest seen from a pre-WW2 British Lions tour. Gordon Bonner, full back of Wakefield and Bradford, was on that six-month 1930 trip to New Zealand, Australia and Ceylon, travelling by boat outward bound through the Panama Canal and returning via the Suez Canal. On return he changed codes to play Rugby League, continuing his sporting career. Most of the memorabilia, ephemera and souvenirs he carefully collected and retained are here on offer, overwhelmingly in very good condition. As well as Rugby, Maritime Travel and Maori Culture are also fully represented in this remarkable WGM Bonner 1930 BRFT Lions Collection

1970 JPR Williams Matchworn Welsh Jersey v S Africa: Particularly ironic in the face of his very recent passing, after the jersey was consigned, a rarely seen item of historic memorabilia from the great Wales and twice Lion full back John 'JPR' Williams. An iconic and instantly recognisable figure, he wore this scarlet jersey with collar and stitched No. 15 to rear in white and with the WRU's three feathers emblem to breast in the rain and mud-soaked clash with the Springboks at Cardiff in January 1970: the 6-6 draw proving the first time in their meetings that Wales had avoided defeat to S Africa. Exchanged with an opponent after the match. Wonderful memories of a superb player and important match. A few marks, despite being inevitably washed after the mud bath, but in excellent condition for its near 55 years. Glorious £4000-8000
- 100
1974 Sir Gareth Edwards Matchworn British & I Lions Jersey v S Africa: There can surely be few more iconic such jerseys: one of the world's greatest scrum halves, in the second biggest ever British and Irish Lions' victory over S Africa, on their unique unbeaten tour in 1974. This jersey was worn by the double Lion in the 26-9 Third Test win over the Springboks at Port Elizabeth. Classic scarlet issue, with slight fading to chest and with white collar a little 'pinked' in the wash, Lions' Four Nations crest to breast and white stitched 9 to reverse. Made by Umbro. Very good condition for its 50-year anniversary. Another of his jerseys from that tour sold for £15,000 a year ago. Unmissable £9000-15000

Third Reich - Nazi Party - a copy of the Jahrbuch der Ausland-Organisation der NSDAP 1942 (the year book of the overseas organisations of the Nazi Party) 4to, 448pp. The year 1942 was the highspot of the Nazi domination of Europe, and this yearbook is full of articles celebrating the victories which Germany had achieved by that time. However, there is a large article reflecting on one of the worst war crimes of the War - the massacre at the Lviv Jewish Ghetto. Of further interest are the considerable number of advertisements in the book - from companies who today might regret having taken part - and the large number of reproductions of propaganda posters from the time - providing a remarkable insight into Nazi Germany at the pinnacle of its wartime successes £50-70

458

WWII - Rare German Board Game - Adler Luftverteidigungs spiel (Air Defence Game) - a rare example of a 1941 German boardgame, featuring a graphic on front showing a German anti-aircraft gun shooting down an RAF plane, and interior contents comprising a game board, wooden play pieces - each crafted to look like planes, dice and printed instructions. Slight dusting to box exterior but otherwise appears complete and interior contents in fine condition. It was recommended for players aged 12 or over who rolled a specially designed die and moved the wooden fighters and bombers around the board. Each side has six bombers and six fighter escorts making a total of 24 planes. The objective is to attack airfields, barracks, gas and electricity works, iron works and radio stations. The board is designed to appear as if you are looking down on top of an aerial photo, although it is a fictional town. WWI interesting small archive of documents, photographs etc -relating to the earliest days of WWI mainly relating to a captain and his efforts to join the fighting - the irony being that he appears to have had some difficulty being assigned to a regiment, such was the situation when the war commenced. It was somewhat different after the carnage began a few months later. The archive also contains a number of photographs taken around 1910 in India, including formal regimental photographs as well as of sports teams etc. There is also a number of photographs of George V presenting Regimental Colours in the 1920s. The Captain appears to have survived the war as there are later references to him as a Lt Colonel. £100-200

464

English Civil War - The Declaration of Captain James Hind. 6pp. Small 4to, with engraved portrait of Hind to cover. Originally printed in 1651, but this is possibly a later reprint. However all copies of this pamphlet are extremely rare.

Hind, a Royalist commander is considered by some to have engineered the escape of Charles II after the Battle of Worcester. After the demise of the Royalist cause, he became a highwayman, who only robbed Parliamentarians - once audaciously attempting to rob Oliver Cromwell himself. His actions in redistributing the money he stole impoverished Royalists earned him the reputation as a latter day Robin Hood. He was finally captured, hung drawn and quartered at Worcester in 1652 £100-200

A Major Figure In The Abolition Of The Slave Trade

466

Slavery - Granville Sharp fine autograph letter signed (fine signature) dated 1780. A legal letter concerning the will of Lord Crew. Although William Wilberforce is largely credited with being the architect of the abolition of slavery, it was actually the Rev Granville Sharp who was the real architect, forming the movement which finally persuaded Wilberforce to bring the legislation for the abolition of slavery before Parliament, and as such his contribution to ridding the western world of the scourge of slavery should never be forgotten £80-100

467

America - The War Of 1812 interesting letter dated June 17th 1813 from an English lawyer to his brother discussing various family matters but mentioning that a niece was about to be married to a British Army Captain and then adding that 'the place where he lived has been taken by the American Army and I do suppose that my brother and Betsy must have made their escape along with General Sheaffe, whom my brother was well acquainted with for many long years...' The letter then contains a long denunciation of war. The mention of Sheaffe, one of the prominent British Generals during the 1812 war, pinpoints the place described as York in Upper Canada - which was attacked by a substantial American force in April 1813, forcing Sheaffe and presumably the people described in this letter to flee. The rest of Sheaffe's force was captured by the Americans and the town looted, leaving to considerable criticism of Sheaffe in his actions. Letters mentioning actions in the 'forgotten American war of 1812' are rare £70-100

470

London Rentals 1830 remarkable autograph letter dated June 21st 1830 - from Harriet Stone Horwell to her aunt advising her on various properties in London to rent - and this providing a considerable insight into the type of accommodation available at that time. 4pp 4to in fine condition '...next door to the one in Museum Street which I looked at before when you wanted lodgings is a first floor attic & kitchen (3 rooms on the floor) the lowest rent 50 guineas. The situation is good but I think it dear...' 50 guineas in 1830 would equate to about £3,500 today £70-100

471

Brighton - Mahomed's Vapour Baths 1828 interesting autograph letter dated JULY 16TH 1828 - from the late 18th/early 19th composer Thomas Stirling, 4pp 4to - mentioning that his mother had been at Brighton '...taking Mahomed's Vapour Baths and we have received letters from her but have not yet heard I am sorry to say of any great benefit from them. These baths, however, are in general so efficacious in complaints of the kind that we have every hope from them. Elsewhere in the letter Stirling mentions that he was sending his correspondent a copy of his 'little work' and discusses its progress through its publication and his hope for good reviews. The Indian adventurer and author Sake Dean Mahomed opened the first Indian restaurant in Britain in London in 1810. In 1814, he and his family moved back to Brighton and opened the first commercial "shampooing" vapour masseur bath in England, "Mahomed's Baths", on the site now occupied by the Queen's Hotel. Located on the seafront, the luxurious bathhouse offered therapeutic baths and shampooing with Indian oils. The success of the venture led him to be appointed shampooing surgeon to bother George IV and William IV £70-100

472

[Napoleon Bonaparte] fine closely written autograph letter from an English attorney to his uncle dated November 25th 1806, discussing legal matters, but including a long sentiment concerning Napoleon's invasion of Russia which was taking place at this time: '...the situation in Russia: that unfortunate monarch is now driven out of his Kingdom: every town is in possession of the French and Buonaparte is pressing forward towards Poland in order as it would appear to revolutionise that Country...' £50-70

Smuggling - An Act for the more effectual prevention of Smuggling in the United Kingdom. Printed Act of Parliament dated 1784. Folio 30pp in fine condition. Smuggling had become endemic throughout the 18th c particularly in the coastal areas of the West Country. By this time smuggling had become organised crime with gangs often resorting to violence against anyone attempting to stop it, so the authorities decided to stamp out the practice once and for all and this was the most important Act attempting achieve that end. Henri Giffard Engineer invented steam injector original glass lantern slides of his invention - great piece of airship history. Baptiste Jules Henri Jacques Giffard (8 February 1825-14 April 1882) was a French engineer. In 1852 he invented the steam injector and the powered Giffard dirigible airship. Career: Giffard was born in Paris in 1825. He invented the injector and the Giffard dirigible, an airship powered with a steam engine and weighing over 180 kg (400 lb). It was the world's first passenger-carrying airship (then known as a dirigible, from French). Both practical and steerable, the hydrogen-filled airship was equipped with a 3 hp steam engine that drove a propeller. The engine was fitted with a downward-pointing funnel. The exhaust steam was mixed in with the combustion gases and it was hoped by these means to stop sparks rising up to the gas bag; he also installed a vertical rudder. On 24 September 1852, Giffard made the first powered and controlled flight travelling 27 km from Paris to Elancourt. The wind was too strong to allow him to make way against it, so he was unable to return to the start. However, he was able to make turns and circles, proving that a powered airship could be steered and controlled. Giffard was granted a patent for the injector on 8 May 1858. Unusually, he had thoroughly worked out the theory of this invention before making any experimental instrument, having explained the idea in 1850. Others had worked on using jets, particularly Eugene Bourdon who patented a very similar device in 1857. In 1863, he was appointed a Chevalier of the Legion d'Honneur. Death and Commemoration. In response to his declining eyesight, Giffard committed suicide in 1882, leaving his estate to the nation for humanitarian and scientific purposes £60-80

Naval - Australian Navy - Sir George Patey group of approx. 14 postcards showing the ceremony in 1913 when Rear-Admiral Sir George Patey, the first Commander in Chief of the Australian Navy, was Knighted on board the HMAS 'Australia' by King George V, prior to the voyage which took him to take up his post in Australia. Some images slightly faded, but each one is clearly legible. This was the first time that a person had been Knighted on the deck of a ship since Sir Francis Drake was similarly Knighted by Queen Elizabeth I. Patey, originally from Plymouth was appointed the first Commander in Chief of the fledgling Australian Navy. Rare £70-100

WWI - Naval - Australian Navy carton containing a very extensive (100+) correspondence from a naval rating on board HMAS Australia - the flagship of the Australian Navy during WWI. The letters are to his sweetheart in London and are largely domestic in nature - however further research may reveal considerably more detail. 'Australia' was involved in operations against the German Navy in South East Asia, and personnel from the ship - a Battle Cruiser - were involved in the Zebrugge Raid. There was also a mutiny of ship's company towards the end of WWI. Many of the letters feature the somewhat unusual ship censor marks. Together with a group of medals, and an original photograph presumably of the author of the letters £70-100
