Book: The Golf Book of East Lothian. "The author was the minister of Dirleton. An interesting man. He wasn't just a parsimonious East Lothian Meenister. He was a bit of a high-flyer, a considerable womaniser, and enjoyed intoxicating beverages. His womanising always included gifts of jewellery. This extravagance eventually ran him into bankruptcy. John Kerr collected all the information about the golf courses and the clubs of East Lothian, wonderful stuff about the personalities, the problems, the triumphs, the whole camaraderie of golf. By the time Kerr came on the scene, the game was very popular. Everyone was playing, not just the aristocracy. The club at Dirleton Castle was founded in 1854 by 'shopkeepers, working men and artisans'. In Kerr's time, there was a club at Prestonpans, where the power station now stands" – Archie Baird, 1985. Small 4to. 516pp, 34pp appendix. Portrait frontis, 9 full-page plates, text illu. Original tan cloth, rubbed, spine relaid, gilt title and vignettes to upper board and spine. Banff Golf Club Bazaar 1st May 1895
Grant, J P Banff, Scotland: Banffshire Journal, 1895 47p illus, wraps, 1st ed. Golf Club Bazaar's were popular in several clubs, published for a specific day, these books are very hard to come by. Scottish club bazaar books are few and rare. Although Golf is supposed to have been played in Banff for 400 years, it was only in May 1871 that organised golf was conceived with the foundation of the Banff Golf Club. The name and structure of the course was changed in 1909, when it was renamed the Duff House Royal Golf Club. The bazaar book includes 'The Golfer's Song' by Jason Mackintosh of Banff. This is a rare item of late 19th-century 'golfiana'. It consists of poems, songs and short stories by members of the Club, as well as portraits of local worthies. The publication was produced to coincide with a bazaar to raise funds for a new clubhouse and improvements to the course. The Banff Golf Club was founded in 1871, the members playing on a course on Banff links, although golf had of course been played in the area for centuries. The Club continued until 1924 when it amalgamated with another Banff club, the Duff House Club to become the Duff House Royal Golf Club. Banff: the Club 1895 - scarce publication, published 1st May 1895, to commemorate the bazaar held to raise funds for the new clubhouse and course alterations. The Banff Golf Club, in Scotland, was founded in 1871, and became The Duff House Royal Golf Club in 1925. Contains a short history of the birth and development of the club, numerous comical sketches of local characters, several poems, and the words and musical score to The Golfers' Song, by James MacIntosh. Lithographed portraits and illustrations, light foxing. Original coloured pictorial wrappers (showing a view of Banff from the bridge and a golfer in mid-swing with two ladies looking on) £50-60

Green boards with rabbit vignette and titling in black, decorative endpapers depicting players on the Old Course with the town of St Andrews in the background, deckle page edges. One of the more interesting reads in the library of golf. This is the lawsuit history of a famous case involving a once deeded right to raise rabbits on the golf links at St Andrews. The hares infuriated the golfers with their omnipresent burrows and the golfer's claimed antecedence. Though two decades there were several suits brought, but at the end of the day, the golfers won out in Dempster v The Golfers Society of St Andrews and the golf links were preserved to every golfer's great relief. Unmarked copy £40-50

Golf by Paul Skellett & Simon Weitzman and signed by both, limited Number 786. The world's only illuminated book on golf; sure to appeal to non-golfers and art lovers as much as those who are passionate about the game. A never to be repeated first edition hand finished, leather and gold bound and gilded. 'When Simon and Paul asked me to review their book Golf they told me it's their interpretation of golf and its history. My thoughts before seeing their book 'what could anyone do differently to the other 100s of golf history books that have been written since Everard's Golf A Royal & Ancient Game 120 years or so ago?' Boy was I mistaken with my first thoughts! When I consider that this was their first golf book it is an amazing piece, not only of good literature but of the sheer elegance and quality of the product. Using modern technology, wonderful contemporary artwork coupled with wizardry of modernizing old images; both have created a masterpiece Golf: The Bible of Golf The book and its price will not be to everyone's liking, but this book will outlive any pair Jimmy Choo shoes or the latest Burberry Handbag and will go on to make a sound investment. Nearly 600 pages of golf that has taken 5 years to put together. I can understand the hard work these authors have put into their endeavours. The book has won several book accolades, and it is thoroughly deserved." Graham Rowley, Old Sports Auctioneers. GOLF: The Bible of Golf is a rare and beautiful illuminated fine art book that tells the story of golf through both inspired visualization and thought provoking (and often humorous) editorial. It takes us on a painstakingly and lovingly detailed 18 chapter, 585 page full colour journey through the past, present and future of this great game, unveiling the enthusiasm, excitement and influences that have shaped it. It looks at how we have crafted the game on the landscape and how we are compelled to think our way around. The tome has been described as a modern masterpiece and a treasure chest, delivering golf firmly into the arms of popular culture. In a world of disposable information, this hand-built heirloom and literary treasure is an investment for anyone with a passion for books, ingenious word craft, unique and intuitive art - and of course, a love for golf

1928 US Amateur Championship at Brae Burn Programme - Bobby Jones Winner - items from any Bobby Jones Major Championship wins are few and far between, with very few originals from victories hitting the marketplace. Offered in this lot is one of those items, a 90 year old programme from Jones win at the 1928 United States Amateur at Brae Burn Country Club. This item ranks as one of the scarcest Jones items. A scarcely seen program in its own right, the 1928 United States Amateur Championship saw Bobby Jones at the most dominant stage of his career. This match play event saw Jones post a staggering double digit triumph in each of his last three matches on the way to the title - quarter-final match (14 and 13 equalling the most decisive win in the events history), the semi-final Friday September 14 (13 and 12), and the route completing final win was a 10 and 9 victory over T Phillip Perkins, who was a top competitor of the day as the reigning British Amateur Champion. It truly was a record setting Amateur for Jones, claiming his fourth of a record five career USGA Amateur Championships (please note missing cover taped spine), together with Bobby Jones Original Hickories by Sidney L Matthew signed by author £300-400
