Marilyn Robertson Prints Two fashion prints featuring Japanese Ladies. For as long as she can remember, Marilyn Robertson has been creating art. As a child, she recalls that, "Dolls and toys were much less important to me than paints, crayons, scissors and glue." As an adult, Marilyn's passion for creativity first led her to become an art teacher. After the birth of her daughter, she left her profession to focus her varied talents and interests toward designing and publishing greeting cards, graphics and textiles. Marilyn's artistic influences are as varied as her abilities. She names the rich colours and dream-like qualities of Pre-Raphaelite painters such as Rossetti and Burne-Jones as being important to her work. Other influences include the nature-inspired works of the Art Nouveau period, the Impressionists and the free-flowing graphic style of Aubrey Beardsley. Today, in her studio in Nottingham, England, Marilyn loves to paint "the fabulous vibrant shapes and endless rich colours" of flowers and fruit. "They are a source of constant delight and inspiration." f&g 74 x 53cm (2) £60-80

The backpack is of canvas with brown leather buckles. Comes also with the shoulder straps. The inside opens with two flaps. There are additional pockets on the reverse of the front flap. The backpack measures approximately 14 inches (37cm) high by 12 inches (30.5cm) wide and 4 inches (10cm) deep. Markings on the leather back are: stamp D/1001/0288 Pony fur and canvas covered rucksacks such as these were officially called Tornister (Knapsack), first designed in 1934, and were used throughout the German armed forces. The design of this pack was later changed in 1938 to have shoulder straps that interfaced with the pistol belt as well as the bottom of the pack. Barograph by Short & Mason. In an oak 5-glass case, circa 1930. A superb quality and attractive barograph by this good maker. The 8-day duration, drum timepiece clock movement with its original jewelled, lever, platform escapement. Contained in a revolving 3 3/4" diameter brass chart drum. This is mounted upon the top base tier as is barometric cradle with a 12-tiered stack. The nib on the end of the floating arm is refilled when the chart is changed weekly from its front-mounted glass ink bottle and dipper. The timepiece movement is wound weekly by removing the top cover to expose the fixed winding key and the platform escapement hatch which can be slid open for regulating the timekeeping. There is also a chart-change holding bar to lift the nib away from the drum when necessary and for transit. The oak 5-glass cover simply fits over the top tier of the well-figured moulded base and is lifted off to operate the device. All of the glass panels are bevelled and the base contains a double-depth, chart drawer. Short & Mason Limited was founded in 1875 by Thomas Short and James Mason. They were based in Hatton Garden, London and continued until 1969. *Barographs are not only attractive but also provide a good deal of fun when operated. Vintage early 20th century Sunbeam Bicycle: Sunbeam 2 speed Sturmey Archer gears, Brooks B66 leather saddle, 24-inch frame, Brass tyre pump, ready to ride an early Sunbeam bicycle showing the patented 'Little Oil Bath' - the famous Sunbeam invention where the chain is partly enclosed in oil to keep it constantly lubricated. The only disadvantage caused by the fitting of the 'Little Oil Bath' was the difficulty of removing the inner tube on the rear wheel. Punctures in those days could happen frequently because of the poor state of the roads and the thin tyres then in use. To overcome this problem Sunbeam acquired the exclusive right to use Professor Sharp's patented tyre removal system consisting of a divided axle, a spacer and a bolt. When the bolt and spacer were removed the wheel was only attached on the chain-stay side and so the inner tube could easily be slipped off. The new system appeared on machines in 1905 (black finish painted many times over years) £250-300

The New Grove Dictionary of Music and Musicians in 20 Volumes Since its initial publication in 1980, the The New Grove Dictionary of Music and Musicians has been widely acclaimed as an indispensable resource and a classic reference. The word "updated" doesn't begin to describe the thousands of new articles, topics, cross-references, and areas of scholarship incorporated into the new edition. Every one of the first edition's 22,500 articles has been reviewed and revised, with thousands of articles expanded. Previously neglected or under-represented areas have been examined, explored, and explained. Movements and topics once deemed too controversial or too far from the mainstream have been added. And throughout, 6,500 new articles cover more than 5,000 years of music history, instruments, composers, institutions, performers, genres, and more. The new edition also includes extensive, authoritative contributions on non-Western music, such as Latin American music, to less-examined contributions, such as Asian, sub-Saharan African, and Pacific Islander. Winter Charity Relief Painted Pottery Badges all measure approximately 2.5cm in height. 17 in total. In Nazi Germany the Winterhilfswerk (Winter Charity Campaign, or WHW) collection campaigns took place each Winter and raised a great deal of money for charitable purposes. It was common place for those who collected the contributions to give donors a small memento to show appreciation for their contribution, and by wearing the memento, it was obvious the donor had contributed money. One usually parted with a few Pfennigs. There were many campaigns connected with the WHW each year at the national level and at the Gau or state level. Each month from October through March, the money collected was set aside to help those who were hungry or cold. Badges were made in series, the idea being you kept donating to collect a whole series. Series of badges only lasted for up to a week, meaning an individual was encouraged to make a donation every day. 'Can rattlers' or 'brown shirts' wandered through busy streets, pubs and restaurants at meal times collecting donations. Businesses were encouraged to donate a monthly amount and received a sticker or poster for their shopfront window, so they could display it for all to see they were 'doing their part' for charity and the war effort.

The Abzeichen or mementos given to contributors to these and other charity campaigns in Third Reich Germany varied widely from flowers to metal badges, but most were simple enough to be manufactured at home by unemployed hand crafters or by very small enterprises, what we'd call cottage industry. Some WHW mementos are superb pieces of art and others are very simple. Some include semi-precious stones, others beautifully embroidered. They were plastic, metal, wooden, fabric, glass pottery and porcelain. All have been collected since the day they were made and are sought after today. As well as WHW badges, postcards, stamps, first day covers and propaganda booklets were gifted for a donation. Tinnies were also purchased to support the war effort and were often souvenirs of events such as Rallies, Sports Festivals, Public Holidays and groups - navy, infantry, Airforce, returned soldiers, youth, guilds etc £100-120
